

Laura Feeney, AuD, of Columbus, Ohio, now holds Board Certified in Audiology®
Certification from the American Board of Audiology

RESTON, VA. (August 18, 2014) – The American Board of Audiology (ABA) today announced that Laura Feeney, AuD, of OSU Hearing Professionals in Columbus, OH, is now Board Certified in Audiology®. This certification demonstrates Dr. Feeney's commitment to professional excellence in audiology.

The ABA identifies and formally recognizes audiologists whose knowledge base is consistent with the highest professionally established credentials and distinguishes them as Board Certified in Audiology. By entering into this voluntary certification program, Dr. Feeney has demonstrated her commitment to achieving and maintaining high professional standards and to remaining current in the latest audiology developments and issues. The Board Certified in Audiology credential also assists patients in recognizing those audiologists who have completed standardized education and training and who continue their professional development.

The Board Certification in Audiology program is administered by the ABA for the express purpose of certifying audiologists. Mindy K. Brudereck, AuD, Chair of the Board of Governors for the ABA, notes, "We are pleased to recognize Dr. Feeney for her dedication to audiology and her expertise in the field," said Dr. Brudereck. "Ensuring that you are Board Certified in Audiology is a visible way to show colleagues and patients that you are highly committed to professional excellence."

The ABA has been granting certification to audiologists since 1999. Board Certification in Audiology is a voluntary certification program administered by audiologists for audiologists through the ABA. Benefits accrue to both the audiologist and the consumer through recognition of the commitment to continued education in the field of audiology.
